Accreditation 2007

LAVC welcomes the visiting accreditation team

March 19-22, 2007

LOS ANGELES VALLEY COLLEGE

ACCREDITATION IS HERE!

You've seen the newsletters. You've participated on a self study committee. You've read the self study report. (If not, check it out at www.lavc.edu on the Accreditation 2007 page.)

After nearly two years of work on our self study, it is now time for the accreditation team visit to our campus. The team will verify the information in our self study. This is part of the review that colleges undergo every six years to re-affirm their accredited status.

From March 19 through March 22, the visiting team, comprised of colleagues from colleges throughout California, will be on campus. Team members will attend committee meetings, confer with individuals, visit classrooms, and explore the campus.

Please make them feel welcome during their visit. Their headquarters will be in Campus Center 104.

The visiting team would like input from the campus community, so we have scheduled two Open Forums. This is your chance to bring up any issues or questions regarding our accreditation self study. Please attend!

During the final exit session, the visiting accreditation team chair will summarize the team's findings and make a report to the college. This report may include commendations for exemplary practices and recommendations for improvement. You won't want to miss that!
