Involve adjunct faculty members, bring them in to do something new, make them interested in grants. It can be part of new faculty orientation meetings done by Deborah Kaye twice a year. New faculty who is interested in grants can attend Grants Committee meetings to get more information about how to apply, what forms to use, what website to go, etc.

Create quarterly reports regarding the people who applied for grants and who got approved, success stories from each grant. These reports can be sent out to certain departments and faculty members.
