There were some students in the second floor and they were loud and really disturbing. Maybe something could be done in this area. the other area I think is closed off. Installing clear glass. This would keep it in the open concept and allow light into the area down stairs.	6/4/2014 10:55 PM

66	Whom ever decided that the "open study area" (just like USC's) would be great was wrong! Perhaps it was cost effective for the budget but it is hard to study, the noise is just too distracting. Plus, it's too dim in LAVC library and the cubicle desks that have lights are not always working. There should be a sign outside the door stating BYOL (Bring your own light). The library is beautiful but not completely functional and I hope that those that govern never authorize this "open study design" for any future college library's within the district.	5/28/2014 10:57 AM

112	During the 2013 Fall Semester the library erroneously attempted to charge me $50 for a "missing book." The hold on my account nearly precluded me from securing all my required Spring semester classes. Because of my immaculate library book borrowing discipline, I knew a mistake had been made. I promptly found the "lost" book in the stacks and told the people at the counter. This could have prevented me from securing my Spring classes and I am no stranger to being unable to add necessary classes due to late registration dates and deluges of panicking students all attempting to add the same class. I have not set foot in the library since	5/23/2014 6:29 PM

118	question number 3 and 4 are rather irritating. One, hispanic or latino does not classify mexican, I think everyone should know this. Secondly when you ask someone if they are hispanic or latino, and I answer yes, the last thing you would want to do is then make that individual answer number 4, HAVE TO answer number 4. I'm not African-American, Native, Asian, Pacific Islander, or white. I'm Mexican which is not, as their definitions say, Hispanic or Latino. Latinos are anglo-europeans from Italy. Hispanics are anglo europeans from Spain. You would think that in the U.s. we would each own a constitutional first amendment right to have our ethnicity clearly and properly acknowledged. Just saying.	5/23/2014 10:34 AM

127	I appreciate being able to get tax forms and copies of LA Weekly at the library. The quiet atmosphere is very helpful as well. A couple of possible improvements: If there is not someone actively waiting for a quiet study room, allow students to remain there longer. The time limit can be disruptive. Also, some of the library staff members don't have the best grasp of English and it can be difficult to communicate. For example I came in and asked for a book on chess. I basically had to make a model chessboard to get my point across. Please try to have someone there whose language skills are a bit stronger.	5/22/2014 9:15 PM

Library Survey: Spring 2014

143	Every where on campus you may us a state issued ID for interactions involving either, the business office, admissions, EOPS, just about everywhere else. But for some reason at the library there is a new special policy to only accept LACCD ID Cards I believe this to be unfair and needless burden placed on students. If I can pay the college for tuition using only my Drivers license as verification of my identity than why can't I use the services that I have just paid for with the same means I used to pay for them. You have my name and my picture ID along with my student ID number, what exactly is the barrier preventing me from lets saying checking out a book, or using a textbook on reserve.. This policy is a huge reason I will not use or even enter the library, a state issued ID should be sufficient for any interactions on campus. Seeing as how the college is funded by the great state of California.	5/22/2014 11:53 AM

Half of the computers are always out of order. The people who work there don't even know how to fix a simple jammed printer. Maybe they need some hands on training. Some of the librarians arw always on their phones. They condition of the librarry is disgusting. It is obvious that nobody walks it in detail to pick up the picks students leave around or at least to do light cleaning. They open at 8 close at 7. Not enough. You should have it open on fridays also as well as on the weekend. Don't try to hide behind the budget cut because that is none sense. How could have the money to build that multimillion building cross from the library but you don't have the money to have the library open. Brick and mortar doesn't make up smarter.
